YANKS CAPTURE TWO AIR BASES ON SICILY

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

"We will take Sicily within 15 days!"

This is the prediction of Mike Liscandro, well known local food store proprietor, and Mike should know because he was born on Sicily and spent most of his early life there, coming to America 30 years ago and obtaining his final naturalization papers 22 years ago.

Mike has a sister living at Palermo, capital of Sicily, and it was on the historic island that he learned the fruit business.

The chief fruit grown is lemons and oranges, Mike said, and these are produced in large quantities. The island is a beautiful place, he declares.

"The Sicilians will help the Allies in every way they can for they realize that their treatment will be just," declared Mike in predicting a sweeping clean-up of the big island.

While he was connected with a fruit packing firm for several years, Mike also served in the army on the island, and for three years was stationed at Messina, which is on the northeastern apex of the island, across the narrow strait from the Italian mainland. Much of this city was destroyed by a tidal wave in 1908.

During the first World War Mike was ready to be sent to camp when the armistice was signed.

He is deeply interested in the present war and anxious for America and our allies to win as quickly as possible.

I was quite impressed the other day by what a member of the Paul H. Hughey Post of the American Legion said to me during a conversation dealing with post-war problems.

This man, who is in business in this community, was talking seriously, talking along the line that a lot of us ought to be thinking. He would object to having his name used because he feels that people would think he was "grandstanding," but he said some things which are well worth repeating!

"Never before in the history of members of the American Legion, or of Veterans of Foreign Wars," he asserted, "has there been greater need for fellows like us to participate in various organization activities and in civic affairs. If we are willing to accept our responsibility we have a real task ahead of us in providing leadership and advice to young soldiers, sailors and airmen when they return from the present war."

"I well remember my own attitude after I was discharged from World War one. It wasn't too good, nor constructive. I felt that most of us soldiers were deserving of a better deal than many of us were getting; also that the older generation was not as up-to-date as it should be in many ways."

"Time has mellowed a lot of us," he continued, "and I think has made us a little wiser than we were then. Because of this we former fighting men ought to be in a position to do a great service for our own younger fighting men and for our country as well, when victory comes and these young fellows get back. That is the reason we ought to be organized and also be a definite part of other organizations to meet this situation. As individuals we will not be so effective. As a group with a definite but friendly purpose toward guiding the opinions of many of these boys who return, we may be able to accomplish wonders and do the country a real service."

NAZI AIRFIELDS IN FRANCE HIT BY U. S. BOMBERS

Huge American Armada of Flying Fortresses Draws Attention in Britain

FOLLOW-UP TO RAF RAID

German Raiders Retaliate On Coastal Town Where Some Are Killed

LONDON, July 14—(AP)—Hundreds of American warplanes, including Flying Fortresses, hammered at targets in Western Europe by daylight today after the RAF had made a heavy night attack on the German Rhineland city of Aachen, center of railway lines linking the Reich with France and the Lowlands.

German airfields in northern France were believed to have been the objective of the daylight raiders, which staged such a spectacular parade across the channel that thousands of persons in British southeast coast towns congregated in the streets to watch them pass.

For nearly an hour the sky was filled with all types of planes, flying at high altitude.

Twenty British planes were reported lost in the night raid on Aachen, which was accompanied by simultaneous assaults on airfields deep in France by swift Mosquito bombers, Beaufighters and Typhoons. German ground defenses and communications also were the targets of harassing aerial attacks.

One German plane was reported shot down over its base in Holland and two more were shot down

WIDOW AND ORPHAN PAYMENTS RAISED

President Signs Bill for Servicemen's Families

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—Omnibus War Veterans' legislation, boosting compensation for widows and children of men killed in the fighting forces in wartime, became law today with President Roosevelt's signature.

Widows of war veterans—irrespective of their age—will receive $50 a month. The old rates were $38 for those under 50 years of age and $45 for those over 50.

A widow with one child will receive $65, with $13 more for each additional child. Old rates varied according to the children's ages.

The veterans' administration estimated the increased rates would cost $4,536,000 for the first year of operation.

Plan To Increase Meat Rations Is Being Worked Out By OPA

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—D. C. Speaker disclosed today that the Office of Price Administration was developing a plan designed to bring about a major increase in civilian meat rations.

Speaker, unofficial but authoritative capital spokesman, declared the plan has influential backing with OPA, but it has not yet been adopted officially and it still must hurdle the highly controversial issue of putting price ceilings on live hogs and cattle.

"OPA officials claim they can bring enough meat to market to increase rations by regulating livestock prices," D. C. said, "but congressional farm spokesmen, the meat packing industry and the livestock raisers all say it can't be done. The can't be done people made their position clear in a series of hearings held by OPA a few months ago."

As yet the plan hasn't been developed far enough to indicate how much more meat might become available to civilians.

Speaker explained that the proposed larger rations might become available for a short-term

French Islands Off Panama On Side Of Allies

Martinique, Under Vichy Nazi Control Since War's Start, Given Up by Adm. Georges Robert—Warships and Cargo Vessels There—Food Blockade Lifted by United States

By WADE WERNER
WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—Martinique, for many months the only French non-Axis-occupied territory to hold out against co-operating in the fight to liberate France, returned to the fold today and placed its ships and resources at the disposal of the United Nations.

It was significant to many observers that the formal transfer of allegiance came on the 154th anniversary of the storming of the bastille—a revolutionary act that marked the birth of French freedom.

Henri Hoppenot, delegate of the French National committee was to take over from Admiral Georges Robert the authority he formerly exercised as French high commissioner of the Antilles.

The State Department last night made clear that Admiral Robert—long a hold-out against co-operation in the fight to free France—had decided at last to relinquish his authority to a representative of the French committee in Algiers.

The French Antilles (Martinique and Guadeloupe) are in the front yard of the Panama Canal. What goes on there can not be a matter of indifference to Washington.

The State Department said Henri Hoppenot had assured the United States government the "facilities and resources" of the French Antilles would be mobilized to the fullest extent in the war against the Axis, and that "all presently immobilized French naval and merchant ships" at Martinique would be made available.

Evidence that the United States government was satisfied with the arrangements to turn authority over to Hoppenot was seen in the lifting of the food blockade clamped on Martinique by this country last November, and in the analogous controversial issue of putting price ceilings on live hogs and cattle.

"OPA officials claim they can bring enough meat to market to increase rations by regulating livestock prices," D. C. said, "but congressional farm spokesmen, the meat packing industry and the livestock raisers all say it can't be done. JAPS CUT OFF AT MUNDA AS YANKS CLOSE IN

Garrison on New Georgia Island Appears Doomed After Fleet Smashed

NO SUPPLIES CAN GET IN

American Air Force Smashes Bases and Attempts To Relieve Troops

By MURLIN SPENCER
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, July 14.

(AP)—Green-clad United States troops, in frequent gunfire exchanges with the enemy, moved stealthily forward through New Georgia's jungles today upon Munda.

It might well mark the beginning of the end of that Japanese air base.

The enemy's garrison there appeared doomed to fight it out with what men and weapons were on hand.

Reinforcement by sea had failed. Remnants of a Japanese task force fled the disastrous scene of the Kula Gulf above Munda, leaving behind the sunken hulks of a cruiser and from three to five destroyers to add to nine others lost three weeks ago.

Support by the Japanese Air Force also failed. Yesterday eighteen enemy divebombers, protected by 10 Zeros, came over bent on pounding our positions. The raiders never reached their objective. American Corsairs and Lightnings slashed into them at Langsdale Point on New Georgia. Four Zeros and a Corsair, whose pilot parachuted to safety, were shot down. The bombers jettisoned their loads and fled.

Death rained daily on the garrison from swarms of American avenger torpedo and dauntless divebombers. Yesterday, 32 tons of bombs burst among encamped troops and upon anti-aircraft batteries.

Reinforcement or supply of the imperiled garrison by land was rendered virtually impossible by the wily American fighters.

BLIND AMERICANS DOING THEIR PART

Earned More Than Million by War Production

COLUMBUS, July 14—(AP)—Sightless Americans, their deaf hands turned to the war effort, earned more than $1,000,000 in wages on government contracts in supervised workshops during 1942.

C. C. Kleber of New York, general manager of the National Industries for the Blind, traced the growth of his agency's activities today in an address prepared for the 20th Biennial Convention of the American Association of workers for the blind.

National industries was founded by the American Foundation for the Blind as a non-profit allocating agency for government orders under the Wayner-O'Day act. The initial order from Uncle Sam was received Jan. 1, 1939, and within a year 36 workshops for the blind were participating, making pillow-cases, mattresses, deck swabs, mop handles, coca mats, mailing bags and assorted mops and brooms.

TWO YOUTHS DROWN
COLUMBUS, July 14—(AP)—Two youths were drowned here yesterday, Robert Harris, 10, when a boat overturned in Alum Creek and James Irwin, 16, when he was swept over a dam while swimming in the Scioto River.

POPULATION INCREASES DESPITE TROOPS SENT OUT
WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—The resident population of the United States increased by more than 300,000 during the first year of war despite increasingly large numbers of troops sent abroad, the census bureau reported today. As of last Dec. 1, the estimated population was 133,949,529.

'Blood And Guts' General Wades In With Troops In Attack On Sicily

LONDON, July 14—(AP)—Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., commander of the U. S. seventh army invading Sicily, leaped into the surf from a landing barge and waded ashore to take personal command of bitter fighting against German tank units opposing the landing, Noel Monks, Daily Mail correspondent aboard a destroyer, reported.

At "General Patton's American bridgehead at Gela," he wrote, "I was told the story of Patton's great personal courage and the magnificent fighting quality of his troops."

"When the Americans landed at Gela they found the town in control of two German tank regiments. During the next 24 hours the fiercest fighting of the whole Allied invasion took place. Twice the Germans were driven from the town and twice the Americans were forced right back on to the beaches."

"At this stage General Patton leaped into the surf from a landing barge and waded ashore to take over personal command."

"Step by step the Germans were driven back from the beaches as wave after wave of Americans landed from the troopships. By sunset Sunday the bridgehead was well established and the Americans had pushed the Germans back to a few miles beyond town."

"When General Eisenhower visited Patton's headquarters yesterday (Monday) he warmly congratulated his old colleague on his splendid fighting achievement."

Sicilians Deserting Mussolini

By JOHN GUNTHER

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, July 14—Sicilians in some villages have blotted or scrawled out "evviva duce" and "evviva Mussolini" signs on walls and buildings and substituted "evviva George VI." British officers returning from Sicily told me today.

Other parts of the island's population seem entirely inert and apathetic to the invasion and uninterested in the Allied troops establishing themselves.

Peasants and village folk sit on the pavements as troops come in to drink and smoke and hardly look up as they idle past on their mules.

They are not hostile when questioned but show a marked antipathy to the Fascist regime and especially to the Germans.

NEW U. S. SHELLS TO STOP TANKS
Demonstrations Given by Ohio Factory To High Officers Of Army and Navy

MANSFIELD, July 14—(AP)—Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company's appliance division here demonstrated today how two-pound chunks of steel are transformed into armor-piercing shot in 80 seconds.

The demonstration was viewed by army and navy officers and newsmen during a tour of the plant in connection with awarding of the Army-Navy E penant only 14 months after complete conversion of the Mansfield works to production of anti-tank shot, aircraft parts, binoculars and other war products.

After machines pound out the 37 millimeter armor-piercing shot, women inspectors check the bullets with the electronic testers registering dimensions less than half the thickness of human hair.

"As soon as we produce several thousand shot," said Works Manager C. L. VanDerau, "army ordnance inspectors pick at random several samples and give

AMERICAN FLIERS HIT JAPS IN CHINA

Troops Along Yangtze River Strafed—Ships Blasted

CHUNGKING, July 14—(AP)—Fliers of the U. S. 14th air force struck at the Japanese in the past seven days in bombing and strafing missions which ranged from the Yangtze River front to French Indo-China, a communiqué from Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

A motor vessel of between 6,000 and 10,000 tons was among 15 river craft destroyed or damaged near Canton, it said.

Five raids were made on the Haiphong, Hongay and Campha Port area of French Indo-China. Hits were scored on a plant which, it was estimated, supplied 80 percent of cement used for Japanese military installations south of Formosa (Taiwan.)

AMERICAN DRIVE MADE OVER PATH OPENED BY NAVY

British, on Other Side of Island, Dash on Beyond Augusta on to Catania

AXIS MASSING FOR STAND

Allied Warplanes Batter Enemy Positions and Slash Reinforcements

By DANIEL DE LUCE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 14—(AP)—The American Seventh Army has captured Comiso and Ponte Olivo, two of the enemy's 10 main Sicilian air bases, Allied headquarters announced today, and made a 15-mile advance upon Agrigento where large Axis forces have been massing for counter-attack.

At the same time, the Allied communiqué announced the British Eighth Army of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery was rushing from captured Augusta upon Catania, half way up the east Sicilian coast, its way paved by scorching bombardments from air and sea.

Naro, only 12 miles from Agrigento, was captured in the surge of the Americans, the headquarters communiqué said, and the path of General Patton's men too was being blazed by American warships which pounded Ponte Olivo before it was captured and Porto Empedocle, only about three miles from Agrigento.

While fleets of bombers and fighters swept the island from end to end and combed surrounding waters to lay down a fiery blockade, a motor torpedo boat flotilla made a rapier thrust at the jugular vein of Sicilian supply and penetrated Messina Strait, the two-mile neck of water between the island and mainland. There three enemy motor torpedo boats were engaged Monday night, and two of them set afire and driven ashore.

The pattern of the American advance on the western wing of the Allied front was punched out by the big guns of American warships which pounded enemy troop formations and tank columns behind Gela and in the Ponte Olivo and Porto Empedocle areas.

The Americans now hold a line running nine miles inland to Naro, 15 miles northwest of their westernmost beachhead at Licata.

Ponte Olivo is nine miles inland from Gela, another of their beachheads, and Comiso is about six miles west of Ragusa, whose capture, reported yesterday, was confirmed by today's communiqué.

Rapidly laying a solid grip to Sicily's eastern coast, the British Eighth Army moved upon Catania.

GRAND JURY CALLED TO PROBE STRIKES

First Action Taken Under New Anti-strike Law

PITTSBURGH, July 14—(AP)—The government made its first move under the Connally-Smith anti-strike act today by convening a special session of the federal grand jury here to inquire into the lingering coal strike that began June 20.

Coincidentally, the number of idle miners in the rich southwestern Pennsylvania coal field, most of whose output goes directly to war Ousey Steel Mills, dwindled from 10,000 to an estimated 3,000. Only three captive or company-owned pits remained down.

United States Steel Corporation reported "a definite improvement" in the Fayette County fields where the strike has centered, and announced it would get 24,000 tons of coal from that sector today, as against 16,000 yesterday.

GASOLINE BOOKS ARE LIFTED HERE FOR VIOLATIONS

Statement on How To Get Vacation Gasoline for Vacations Issued

Several gasoline ration books have had to be "lifted" here within the last few days, it was revealed Wednesday at the Ration Board, because of violations of OPA regulations designed to conserve both gasoline and tires.

W. L. O'Brien, the chairman of the board, declined to make public the names of the motorists whose ration books had been revoked but did say five had been "lifted" at the last meeting of the gasoline panel and added that this made a total of "about 15."

He went on to explain that "when violations occur, there is no alternative" for the various rationing panels of the board. He declared "it just isn't fair" to those who conscientiously try to cooperate in the country's war effort to let a few "do just as they please." Many of those whose books were revoked had been cautioned, the chairman said as he released a formal explanatory statement on "vacation gasoline," which follows verbatim in full:

"A person desiring to use his basic ration for vacation travel must apply to the board for permission. He must inform the board of his destination, the date he expects to leave, and the date he expects to return. He must also establish and certify on form OPA R-572, in duplicate, that he has sufficient A coupons in his basic ration or gasoline acquired by such coupons to enable him to make the trip. The board, in determining whether the applicant has sufficient gasoline and coupons to make the trip, should also take into consideration the necessary driving the applicant will have to do at the destination. If the board finds that he has sufficient gasoline and coupons, it shall complete and issue to the applicant a form OPA R-572, in duplicate, which is specially provided for the purpose. The board will fill out all the information requested. Inasmuch as this form constitutes a permit to travel under the non-essential driving ban, it is important that you be as specific as possible in fixing the dates of leaving and returning and the starting and destination points. You may allow a maximum tolerance of five days for the dates between which the trip to the destination must be made and the same tolerance for dates within which the return trip must be made. A validation stamp must be affixed to the form by the board before it is valid."

The board here has been processing applications for renewals of A books with the help of several volunteers working in the evenings. It was repeated that if applications are not sent in this week, there probably would be a delay in receipt of the new books after the July 21 expiration of the old ones. It was explained that the board has been operating "short-handed" this month because of sickness and that it would not be able to handle any late rush for renewals.

during the night over Britain.

The German radio acknowledged that a considerable number of buildings had been destroyed in the raid on Aachen and reported a large number of casualties among the civilian population.

The city, which has a normal peacetime population of 164,000, is situated about 39 miles southwest of Cologne. In addition to being a vital railway junction it is the site of important war industries and coal mining developments. The last attack on Aachen was in February, 1942.

German air raiders struck back last night at coastal districts in northeastern Britain, concentrating on one town where they caused some fatalities and damage.

UNVARNISHED NEWS OF WAR IS WANTED

Editors Say Americans Can Take Good or Bad

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—Editors and publishers called in by the Office of War Information (OWI) for advice on its program expressed confidence today in the American public's ability to take the good news with the bad, and suggested that the government keep the people apprised "of what is going on" as a "certain guarantee" of high morale.

This view was emphasized in a statement issued yesterday by an advisory committee chosen by Palmer Hoyt, new director of OWI's domestic bureau. The group elected Roy Roberts, managing editor of the Kansas City Star, as chairman.

'In Times Of War Prepare For Peace'

Colin Campbell Appeals for Constructive Post-war Planning In Address Before District Rotary Meeting in Columbus

One of the most discussed features of the program at the district assembly of Rotary International, held at Columbus the first of this week, was an address delivered by Colin Campbell of Washington C. H., immediate past district governor, on the subject "International Service and Post-War Planning."

Campbell's plea for immediate preparation toward smoothing over some of the difficulties which will arise following the present war, as being a vital Rotary objective, was declared by Fayette County men who attended to be one of the high spots of the meeting. By request his remarks are here given.

International Service and Post War Planning are most certainly tied closely together in the Rotary program this year. During the past year, under the fine leadership of President Carbajal, Rotary has done much to promote understanding and good will between our country and those of the South American countries, for it is generally accepted by the people of both North and South America that our future and theirs is destined to go forward together. In an effort to promote International understanding it was my privilege to have with me in our district a distinguished Rotarian from Guayaquil, Ecuador. A past Vice president of Rotary International and a man who has occupied positions of responsibility and trust of great importance in his government. During the week he was with me we visited as many clubs as possible, where he presented his plea for inter-American understanding and co-operation.

At the time of my official visit to each club I chose to mention, with respect to International service, only the fact that our President's visit to our South American neighbors, the way he was received, and decorated, and the congratulatory comments from the heads of our own government, as our principal activity in International service. This together with the fact that many of our own Rotarian members in the armed forces are actually in the countries of our allies, members of the United Nations, thus brings International understanding up on a new plane in a greater part of the world.

It is from here on, however, where we tie in with Post War planning. Rotary is giving this subject particular emphasis, and I think rightly so, for if we are to have the kind of world for which we are fighting, we must not only win this war but we must begin now to lay the groundwork to capitalize on that military victory which we must win. A successful military decision is not enough.

After World War I it was assumed that a common ideal would inspire all men to build a durable world order which would bring lasting peace, but we all know how fallacious was that assumption. There will be no finality to a military decision in this war unless it leads to a political decision enforced by a world wide control over the instruments of force. It is here that Rotary has the opportunity to prepare the minds and hearts of people all over the world to accept the proper conditions toward ordering human affairs.

A few years ago the ancient maxim "In time of peace prepare for war" was sound advice as later events proved. In view of the results of the last war, however, it seems we would well reverse the maxim and say "In time of war prepare for peace." It is difficult to say how much actual preparation for peace has thus far been accomplished. Post war plans are numerous enough but most of them about which we hear take no account of reality or the facts of human nature. Most of them have one common denominator, that of helping out brethren by providing for their needs to the fullest and sending the bill to Uncle Sam. But Uncle Sam has no income except that which he collects in taxes from his more industrious and provident nephews and nieces. When he pays a bill it means that someone, somewhere has to perform an equivalent amount of work either now or later. While we are at war most certainly all of us are willing to work, pay taxes and buy bonds because we feel that our money is being used to put Hitler and Hirohito in their proper places. But after this necessary job has been done I am wondering if everyone will be as willing to work and pay then, as they are now. This brings up the angle of the security of our own country as well as the problem of arranging a peace which will be built on the proper basis to insure a lasting peace and eliminate the possibility of our experiencing another world catastrophe within the next twenty five years.

It is not too soon for us to be thinking along these lines. Our experience in the past methods of making peace certainly should convince us that we need a new approach. First, however, we should examine the immediate situation which will confront us after we have won military victory. Instantly thereafter a great load of fear will lift from the minds of men and a great hope for the future will rise with this relief. But soon the stark scene of devastation will be revealed. Resentment of hideous wrongs will raise the spirit of hate and revenge. All this will add fire to the natural demands for punishment of the enemies. In addition there will be millions of starving, maimed, diseased and orphaned to be cared for. Every nation outside the western hemisphere will be hungry and underclad. Every nation will be impoverished, millions of homes will have been destroyed. Millions of tons of shipping will have been sunk. Our industrial plants will be greatly deteriorated and their re-habilitation, together with the time it will take to make the change over from mass production of war materials to mass production of civilian goods will entail a situation when millions of men will be idle and demanding jobs. Every nation will be loaded with debts and the financial problem of restoring national life will be enormous. All this will be aggravated by the demand of the people for release from wartime restrictions, discipline and burdens. The political situation in the occupied countries will also be badly muddled. New governments will have to be set up and the problem of setting them up properly with responsibility will without doubt be a tremendous undertaking.

Our boys, and the boys in every army, will clamor to come home as soon as the enemy is disarmed. Their wives and parents will clamor for their return without delay. Those boys in turn will demand the right of their service and, sacrifice that their state of life be restored to them. They will rightly make themselves heard and they will be in no mood to see their country's sustenance and rights sacrificed in peace making.

In all this welter of hope, suffering, wrong, devastation, hate and idealism, a peace will have to be made. In all participating nations the spirit of nationalism will be running high, each country will be pulling every string to restore the utmost in economics and political advantage for itself, and greed, arrogance, and selfishness will be aggravated by the demand for haste in restoring world order. In this climax the peace-makers will be confronted with the proposition of building a permanent peace.

After the last war we went to the peace table unprepared because we were told that peace discussions would confuse the war effort and that there would be plenty of time afterward to settle those problems. In view of this failure and the situation I have just placed before you is it not important that we be thinking now with respect to these problems. There is nothing more important than getting ready to secure what we are fighting for and that involves careful thoughtful thinking on the part of all of us.

Rotary realizes the importance of this situation and devoted its convention this year mainly to the theme of winning the war first and then laying the groundwork for winning a just and lasting peace.

Our wartime activities during the past year have been outstanding and should so continue, but we must, in our position of leadership, begin now to be thinking seriously about these post war problems. An enlightened public opinion on these things will do much to generate a sound program and prepare the minds of the public to accept the proper solutions to these problems. Rotary urges you to devote time and thought either in your regular meetings or in evening discussion groups toward developing the thinking along these lines. You might be surprised at different thoughts this type of discussion might bring out.

The last news letter from Rotary International carried a letter from our new president Charlie Wheeler in which he says: "That Rotary activities this year should be adapted to the needs of the moment in this present world crisis. We want Rotarians to think now as they have never thought before. Yours and my success in establishing these thoughts in the minds of our fellow-workers will measure the success of Rotary this year. Let us drive with all our might for this adaptability to the moment. Rotary principles and ideals make a fine foundation for international understanding and peace. It is therefore Rotary's duty to put forward its ideals at the peace table that they may play a prominent part in the framing of that important document. Then after the war Rotary should a-

ROMMEL SHOT DOWN EN ROUTE TO SICILY, SAYS RADIO REPORT

Underground Broadcast from Germany Unconfirmed

LONDON, July 14—(AP)—British sources had no confirmation today of a roundabout report that German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was shot down by Allied fighter pilots Tuesday while en route to Sicily aboard an Axis transport plane.

The report, which was said to have originated from a broadcast by a German underground radio station "Atlantic," was carried by the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet and sent to London last night by a Reuters correspondent.

Rommel, according to this report, was said to have been traveling under strong fighter escort to take command of Axis forces in Sicily. The report said he was accompanied by Gen. Siegfried Westfals, Lt. Col. Kiehl and three Italian staff officers.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Stiffening Axis Opposition
Facing Allies After 5 Days
Of Good Progress on Sicily

The Sicilian invasion entered its fifth day with good fortune still pacing the hard driving Allies, but it seemed certain that concerted opposition was impending unless the Axis did the unbelievable thing of quitting cold.

The first counterattack of any weight was that hurled by the Germans at our American forces under General Patton on the west wing yesterday. There is some passing speculation whether this assault was directed at the Yanks purely because of tactical necessity, or whether the embittered Hitlerites had in mind discrediting United States efforts for propaganda purposes. Be that as may, we took the attack in stride and smashed it.

Events are milling about so swiftly that he who makes forecasts is bullying his luck, but it looks now as though the broad plain of Catania—one of the battle-grounds of the ages—may continue its old role and become the scene of the decisive engagement in the fight for Sicily.

This fertile granary, which crowds with daring insolence against the volcanic foothills of crumpling Etna, about halfway along the eastern coast of the island, lies athwart the route which the Allied forces on the east wing are pursuing northwards towards the strategic port of Messina. The Axis well may make its first big show of resistance here. The Catanian plain affords the best field for the operation of mechanized forces in this generally mountainous island, and tank divisions presumably will be used in strength by both Allies and Axis.

The port of Catania on the edge of the plain is Sicily's second largest city, with a population of a quarter million. In its some 2,700 years of adventure it has been the center of many wars. It has been destroyed, and has risen again from its own ruins, so often that it's hard to keep the count—not to mention the assaults from erupting Etna and earthquakes.

Despite its varied experience of hard knocks, however, Catania probably never was hit harder than it will be if it tries to resist the march of General Montgomery, with his famous British Eighth Army and hard-boiled Canadians. Perhaps the already bomb-blasted city will remain passive while the decision is sought on the neighboring plain.

Catania is 59 miles by rail south of Messina, the all-important port which is the island's railroad head for the mainland's railroads. Trains are ferried across the narrow strait of Messina, thus maintaining a vital communication.

Isolation of Sicily from the Italian peninsula demands that Messina be captured at the earliest possible moment. This will leave the Axis forces on the island cut off from supplies and reinforcements, save for the few which might be moved by air.

Allied progress northward should be helped vastly by yesterday's capture of the great seaport of Augusta which lies between Syracuse and Catania. Augusta's harbor is one of the best in the Mediterranean and is a

SPEAKER WARNS THAT USE STAMP CHECK-UP NEAR

Lions Club Hears Revenue Agent Talk—Club To Handle Race Programs

The new withholding tax and various phases of its operations, was the subject of an interesting discussion by Frank Finn, a special representative of the U. S. department of internal revenue, at the meeting of the Washington Lions Club held at the Country Club Tuesday evening.

In the course of his remarks Finn warned that passenger automobiles will be checked with in the next few days for their display of the current use tax stamps. He asserted that such stamps must be pasted on each such vehicle in a conspicuous place and that violators are subject to a fine of from $5 to $25.

A committee was appointed by President Harold McCord to handle the sale of race programs at the county fair this month. This service has been an annual activity of this club and all profits from the sale of these programs are used by the club in furthering aid to the blind and in purchasing glasses for needy school children.

Guests of the club at this meeting were Charles Orr, of the J. C. Penney Company and Rev. J. K. Abernethy, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Godsend to the Allies, who have needed more deep-water harborage for the unloading of the expeditionary forces and equipment from the vast armada of expeditionary ships.

Another important development is the capture of Florida, Palazzolo and Ragusa. These places lie across the tip of the southeastern peninsula astride which the Allied forces are forging forward. The significance of these captures is that they are non-mountainous centers. Ragusa is a strategic point for both railway and highways. If you will look at your maps you will see what this involves.

It means that the American and other Allied troops on the west arm of the peninsula, and Montgomery's forces on the eastern coast, are in process of establishing communications across the tip of the peninsula for fast movement of men, equipment and supplies. This brilliant stroke also divides enemy contingents in that area.

Air power continues to play its major part magnificently. Axis communications are being neutralized and the defending air-fleet is being smothered.

PLAN TO INCREASE MEAT RATIONS FOR CIVILIANS IS WORKED OUT BY OPA

period only—probably until next spring—unless the supply of livestock improved.

If permitted to impose price ceilings on livestock, OPA hopes to solve the dilemma of holding down meat prices, Speaker said. At present, many small packers are finding it impossible to buy at unregulated prices and sell under OPA regulations.

More Sacrifice
The civilian population was asked today to get along with less canned goods and simpler clothing.

The War Food Administration (WFA) allocated to civilians 70 percent of next year's canned vegetables and soups and 53 percent of the prospective fruits and juices. This will provide a somewhat smaller per capita quota than this year's allotments.

Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board (WPB) disclosed plans to clamp down on the output of expensive fabrics and concentrate priorities to stimulate mass production of low-priced clothing.

"We need not have clothes rationing," said Nelson, if frills are done away with and sheer volume substituted.

Food problems concerned the highly placed officials in the administration. A special advisory committee, it was learned, reported that farm parity prices stood in the way of all-out food production. Parity prices are designed to give agricultural products as much purchasing power as they had in a base period, usually 1909-14. The report said the parity scale is an "utterly faulty mechanism" dating back to "a bygone day."

The War Labor Board (WLB) was reported set to announce a new policy to dissolve the deadlock with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers (UMW) over the signing of a contract with the operators. The board was described as satisfied, without the formality of a contract, if union and management comply with its orders.

Majority leader Barkley (D-Ky) of the Senate kept the recessed Congress in the news by declaring the Senate would be asked in the fall to act on a general resolution committing the United States to an interest in international affairs after the war ends.

nouncement that relief supplies would be sent to Martinique and Guadeloupe without delay.

The United Nations should gain almost immediately about 140,000 tons of merchant shipping as a result of the change in political control of Martinique, but the warships there are unlikely to go into service for many months.

Naval sources here place the shipping total in Martinique at eight tankers and two dry-cargo vessels. The warships are the aircraft carrier Bearn, the old training cruiser Jeanne D'Arc, the light cruiser Emile Bertin and the merchant cruiser (converted merchant ship) Barfileur.

The four warships were demilitarized in the spring of 1942. Parts of propulsion machinery and vital elements of gun mechanisms were removed to Casablanca where they later fell into American hands.

The merchant ships remained in commission but ran short of fuel. These vessels, Secretary Knox said recently, probably could be made useful quickly. The tankers especially will be valuable.

Knox estimated it would take "a long time" to get the French warships in working order.

tania against continued weak enemy resistance.

The semi-circular Allied line stretching across southeastern Sicily was now secure at all points and a direct thrust by the British into the Catanian plain appeared possible without risk to their rear by an Axis counter-attack.

The strategic harbor of Augusta, the second major base in Allied hands through which Allied reinforcements and supplies could be poured, had been under Allied domination since Monday at 4 P. M. when a British and a Greek destroyer boldly sailed into the harbor. They held the port under their guns until British troops marched in early today.

The port and installations of the harbor, 19 miles north of Syracuse and 35 miles south of Catania, were undamaged.

Catania airport, next objective, was heavily bombed from the sea early yesterday morning, and formations of Flying Fortresses paid another of their devastating visits yesterday, leaving their targets in flames.

Along the curving line linking the American and British fronts, the Americans still were in contact with the crack Hermann Goering division, but Gen. Patton's armor was continuing to push deep inland and was reported on the edge of Niscemi, 25 miles northeast of Licata and about the same distance north-west of Ragusa.

The Americans had been the first to enter Ragusa.

Modica, about six miles south-east of Ragusa, already had been taken by the Canadians.

At Ragusa the Americans and Canadians had been joined by the British who had captured Priolo en route from the east coast.

Allied food for the civil population already was being landed in Sicily, and headquarters said the fleet of 3,000 Allied warships and transports continued to pour men and supplies onto the beaches and into the captured ports despite efforts of the enemy to concentrate his submarine forces against the convoys.

The announcement said "countermeasures have been highly successful and disheartening to the enemy."

"Some thousands" of Axis prisoners have been taken, the communique said, among them the entire headquarters of the 206th Italian division. Capture of the division commander, Gen. D'Avet, was announced yesterday, and today's communique said this division has "been almost entirely eliminated."

Besides bombing Milo airfield at the western end of the island, and Catania, Allied air forces knocked out 160 trucks, 45 freight cars and six locomotives yesterday.

Forty-two Axis planes were destroyed, at a cost of seven Allied aircraft.

Strong formations of Liberators from the Middle East command unloaded 425,000 pounds of high explosives and incendiaries on Vivo Calentia and Crotona airfields on the Italian mainland.

(The London radio quoted Italian sources as "admitting that Allied ships are now in the roadsteads at Catania.")

(The Algiers radio in a broadcast recorded by Reuters said last night that British and Canadian forces already had contacted strong German elements—after the capture of Florida, interior town eight miles west of Syracuse, and that "heavy fighting took place.")

It was stated officially that the Canadians and British troops had met some resistance in their drive inland and up the east coast, but the statement added that "good progress is being made."

Meanwhile, Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's hard hitting American Seventh Army tenaciously extended its 60-mile front in southern Sicily reaching from Licata on the west to Ragusa on the east, and continued to pin back German and Italian forces which, by moving eastward, could threaten Montgomery's left flank.

The Americans have repulsed the heaviest repeated enemy counterattacks of the campaign, maintaining the vital left sector of the Allied line intact against a series of thrusts by French-made tanks and other armored units.

The crack Hermann Goering division, rushed from the interior to bolster Italy's Fourth Livorno Division in its attempts to block the American advance, was beaten off when it collided with the Americans for the first time Sunday, but the Americans were believed to be reforming for another slash.

Altogether, the Allies captured five additional towns yesterday to bring the invasion total

Stalin And Willkie Agree On Romance

NEW YORK, July 14—(AP)—

Premier Joseph Stalin and Wendell Willkie have collaborated in a different type of international relations—the romance of an American newspaper correspondent and a Russian girl, it was revealed today.

Willkie confirmed the story—and kept the names of the principals a secret—as follows:

The correspondent and the girl were seen together in Moscow, one thought it was romance, but to Russian officials it looked as if the correspondent might be trying to obtain information from her.

Within a short time she was removed from Moscow, apparently, slated for Siberia.

The newspaperman returned to the United States and appealed to Willkie, who cabled Stalin on June 14:

"Anything you can do to facilitate this union I will personally appreciate, for I have absolute confidence and I am willing to vouch for—completely."

Stalin's reply, five days later, read:

"I am glad to inform you that your request regarding—will be fulfilled. The decision was made a special exception on your recommendation and vouching."

The correspondent is returning to Russia, Willkie said, to marry the girl.

BOMBING QUESTION MARK

The news from the European front looks very, very good. Day after day and night after night British and American bombers are devastating Germany, Italy and their occupied sources of military supply. We are destroying factories, disrupting communications, damaging nerves and morale. We have given Hitler and Mussolini a bad case of jitters.

Often our bombers destroy more Axis planes than we lose. With this nation's tremendous resources, it would appear that in such a war of attrition we can not possibly fail to win.

But we are sacrificing big planes for small ones, large crews for single pilots. We are losing them in increasing quantities as the desperate Reich throws all she has into defense.

We can replace the planes. So far as machines go, the swap would be advantageous to us even though our losses became even heavier than they are likely to become.

It is the pilots, the navigators, the bombardiers we can't afford to lose. Upon the reserve of such personnel now existing, and upon our ability to maintain the level of the pool for at least the remainder of 1943, may depend whether we can substantially bomb Germany out of the war.

There is a parallel worth considering in Hitler's U-boats. We do not know exactly why, just at the moment when they should have become most effective, the submarines failed. Our protective measures are more efficient, of course, and there has been effective bombing of U-boat bases. Yet many suspect that the collapse of the submarine menace is due at least as much to Hitler's inability to supply capable crews as to any shortage of available undersea raiders themselves. Ten thousand Fortresses and Liberators are useless without skilled pilots, navigators and bombardiers, just as hundreds of U-boats are useless without trained crews with stomachs for playing tag with depth charges and shells.

The Germans believe we can't keep up our round-the-clock bombing. They have to believe that, or capitulate, because if we can keep it up they are licked right now.

So we must hope, and believe, that we can keep the pace, because that is how the war can be shortened—how those optimists who have committed themselves to relatively quick victory can make good.

WORRIED FATHERS

Trying to get at the bottom of all the so-called confusion over the date on which fathers will be drafted uncovers some funny angles. The record, however, is pretty straight:

War Manpower Commission and Selective Service Headquarters have consistently refused to set any date for calling up the first fathers. Furthermore, no date will be officially set or announced or even guessed at until WMC and SS definitely know when the drafting of fathers can't be delayed another day and will be absolutely necessary. They don't know when they will know because no

Flashes of Life

Army Dream Girl Joins the Navy
BATON ROUGE, La.—Men of the 85th bombing group at nearby Harding Field Army air base have court martialed their blonde and beautiful "sweetheart" because she married a Navy ensign.
Their dream girl, Phyllis Beadle of Glendale, Calif., had been elected despite the distance prevailing between the west coast and Louisiana. And if it hadn't been for the society column of a California paper the Harding Field bunch might never have known of Phyllis' marriage.
A local committee is now making preparations for selection of another sweetheart. The boys say the new one will be a Baton Rouge girl and that if she sees them often enough, "she won't have time to get mixed up with the Navy."

fathers are going to be inducted until all other able-bodied men of military age have been called up and nobody knows when all other able-bodied men will have been called up and their supply exhausted.

Nobody knows when all the available supply of "non-fathers" will be used up because physical standards have been lowered a little and may be further lowered, possibly delaying the induction of fathers by a month or more.

The best advice to fathers, therefore, is to quit worrying and forget it till the time comes when the draft board sends them that notification. But they can't. It isn't natural to ignore so important a question that means temporarily breaking up the happy family and putting the love nest in hock.

Out of this uncertainty and genuine personal interest in trying to plan ahead as far as possible has sprung all the desire to know when the fateful day is going to come. In the wake of this desire to know the worst there has been churned up a whole whirlpool of rumors. It's going to be Aug. 1, Oct. 1, Jan. 1, or any and all dates in between and before. Every such speculation is a pure guess because nobody in Washington D. C. knows.

THE BACKYARD AIRPLANE

The younger generation of fliers created by this war contains many who are as enthusiastic as Igor Sikorsky about the post-war possibilities of the helicopter as a family car of the air, which could do much to stop the concentration of living in overcrowded cities.

The beauty of the helicopter for local commuting, short-distance vacationing and similar purposes is that it would not require a complete rebuilding of existing communities to provide scores or hundreds of big airports.

Planning Diet of Future

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
IT MAY shock my readers to know that such an eminent authority on diet as I am was not invited to be a delegate to the International Food Conference at Virginia Hot Springs, but such is the case. I was not invited for the case. I was not invited for the case.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

same reason that a steel worker will not be invited to be a delegate at the peace conference: I am a practical man, and the boys at Virginia Hot Springs were just nice, sweet little theorists floating around in a rarefied atmosphere all their own.

I do not, in spite of the slight which was put upon me by this omission, however, share the indignation which my colleagues of the press voiced; their complaint being that the conferences were held in private, which excluded them from the debates.

Why It Was Private
I accept the only explanation which makes any sense as to why the conferences were held in private—that advanced by Mr. Frank Kent, the columnist. Mr. Kent said the reason the conferences were held in private was that nothing was going to happen at the conference.

Mr. Roosevelt threw out the suggestion one day that an international conference on food should be held, and then promptly forgot it. But some of his people in the Department of Agriculture took him seriously, and then asked the President what they should discuss. He hadn't the faintest idea whatever; who, and even what, had suggested the idea to him had entirely slipped his mind. But there the boys were with a conference on their hands, delegates invited and on the way, so the only way to cover up was to throw a smoke screen of secrecy around the whole affair. If nobody knew what happened at

Leave My Heart Alone BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

SYNOPSIS
KAREN BELL, wealthy and lovely, decides to announce the date of her marriage to PAUL WYATT, her sweetheart since childhood.
YESTERDAY: The young stranger, meeting Karen again, this time on her own beach, tells her his name is Martin Haliday, then informs her he knows "just about all there is to know" about her.
CHAPTER FIVE
AFTERWARDS—for days, in fact—Karen was to remember what Martin Haliday had said in parting when they had met, for the second time, on her beach. He had told her that he knew who she was, who her father was, where she lived, "all there is to know about you." It was amusing and at the same time annoying.

It was conceivable that anyone, no matter who he was or where he came from, might know who Jim Bell was, since her dad was not only so well known in the south, but was practically a national figure. The big house, with its tower, was not just a landmark, but almost a tradition. As for Karen, her name and photograph frequently appeared in society columns, smart magazines, and the rotogravures. But no other person could possibly know all there was to know about another. A person did not know that much about himself!

Certainly Martin Haliday was an odd specimen. Karen knew that much about him. Maybe it was because he was so different from the young men she had known, young men who had been born to all the advantages, to assume established places in the business and social world, to inherit large estates and fortunes. Martin Haliday, she assumed, was "of the people." Not that that was anything against him, but it made him different, in her eyes, at least, although that was not all that aroused her curiosity.

There was some sort of mystery about him, she felt sure. He could not have come down here to live in a trailer just to look at the ocean. She did not believe he had come for his health, either. Rather, she was inclined to credit her supposition that he had something in his past he wanted to forget or escape. It might be nothing more than a love affair that had turned out badly. But he did not look or act like a young man with a broken heart.

Oh, well, it did not really matter, nor in any way concern Karen Bell. Their paths had crossed, might cross a time or two again, but otherwise she and a man who lived in a trailer could have nothing whatever in common. It was just that he managed to annoy and amuse her, and therefore pique not only a natural curiosity, but a lively interest. But if he never saw him again it would not matter, either.

Her father was pleased when she joined him for breakfast. It was the one meal served in the big house that was diversified and interesting. Karen thanked him for the compliment, stooping to brush his cheek lightly with a kiss as she slid into a chair. It struck her that he was inordinately pleased that she had come down. She said, "You still worry about me when I'm out late, don't you, darling, even when I'm with Paul? I've been up for ages, even had a dip. And since it has made me feel much perkier than any daisy possibly could, I'm going to do it every morning from now on. I'll keep you from reading your paper and pester you with questions and refill your cup, if you'll pass it to me, Jim."

She sometimes called him that because she knew it tickled him even when he claimed he thought it disrespectful. In many ways her dad remained exceedingly old-fashioned, such as in fussing because she stayed out until the wee small hours. She knew he never went to sleep until he knew she was safely in. He reminded her of a mother hen, when she was the one who ought to be mothering him.

"That's quite a resolution." His eyes twinkled behind his thick reading spectacles, which he moved now, folding his paper at the same time. "The news will keep if I have my daughter to rest my eyes. But Jan will never allow you the privilege of pouring my coffee, my dear. That sixth sense of his tells him the second I'm ready for a refill."

Even as he spoke, the heavy swinging door opened to admit the old servant on his silent feet. For Jan was an established part of the household, too. He had been with them as long as Karen could remember, and apparently meant to stay on as long as he lived.

"Just half a cup now, Jan!" Jim admonished, with a sly wink at Karen, over the old man's bent head. It was a standing joke that, although this was the order given, the big cup of ancient moustache design, that held double the portion of any other, should be completely refilled, just as it was Jim's custom to scold because it was, claiming Jan deliberately disobeyed him every time.

"I swear," her father continued, on his way home from the deep South, getting material for a set of articles he has been writing for Harpers on Americans in the war. These eventually will add up to a book. For weeks he had wrestled with late trains and crowded buses, and finally he gave up and bought a second hand car. That acquisition brought problems of its own. No wonder distant Provincetown looked good.

It was difficult to get him talking about anything but Americans in this war. He was deeply impressed with the sincerity and devotion of the average man, and not much perturbed by sporadic strikes and such.

Contradictorily, although leftist in politics (not "red") he has proved himself far from a collectivist, personally. He was a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrator, and spent a few hours in a cell with Michael Gold as a result.

But he admits freely that he is glad the tourists can't get to Provincetown, thus leaving it to people like himself, his wife and their poodle.

He likes to swim and fish, but there again he follows his bent—he doesn't bother about striped bass, for example, because he won't keep at it daily until a school finally comes his way.

Studied Architecture
It is characteristic that Dos Passos prepared at Choate and was graduated from Harvard, vintage E. E. Cummings and Gilbert Seldes; that he went to Spain to study architecture, and became a private in the U. S. Medical Corps in the last war. It fits the pattern that although his father was a New York lawyer, Dos Passos was born in Chicago, spent his childhood in Belgium, Mexico, England, Washington, D. C., and on a farm in Westmoreland County, Va.

And there is something Dos Passos-like in the fact that he published his first novel in England although he is typically American in his writing; even in the circumstance that after developing an individual and effective style that he himself compared to a newsreel, he suddenly turned around and began the current trilogy in very straightforward, simple, easy-to-get-at prose.

Even the fact that this Cape Cod American has a large splash of Portuguese blood fits the picture.

Powder Monkey

On board ship and in the artillery their buddies call them "powder monkeys." Not disrespectful, just a personal, intimate term between friends. Civilians call them gun crews. During a battle the crews of "powder monkeys" must work like trojans bringing the ammunition to the guns.

The gun may fire an anti aircraft .50 calibre shell or a broadside from the 16 inch guns of a great battleship, but in either event the "powder monkey" must pass millions of dollars' worth of ammunition to make the gun effective, and your savings in War Bonds are necessary to supply the financial ammunition that provides the shells.

OHIO VALLEY PLANTS WON'T BE ABANDONED

Point Pleasant Industries Assured Continuance

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—Assured by the War Department that the huge West Virginia Ordnance Works at Point Pleasant would continue to operate despite rumors to the contrary, a delegation of West Virginia and Ohio citizens today sought similar assurance from Navy officials concerning an $8,000,000 boatyard project, also at Point Pleasant.

Senator Revercomb (R-W.Va.) said "assurance was given by the War Department yesterday, that the $55,000,000 Point Pleasant Ordnance Plant will continue operation."

Ohioans in the delegation were Col. H. B. Eber and H. W. Walters of Gallipolis, and Edgar Ervin of Middleport.

The double pointed needle, basic device in machine sewing, was patented by Charles F. Weisenthal in 1775.

STORM CAUSES 'BLACKOUT' FOR OVER TWO HOURS

Entire Community Without Power as Lightning Plays Pranks

One of the most violent electrical wind and rain storms in years, which swept across this part of Ohio from the northwest shortly after 4 P. M. Tuesday, put both "highlines" or transmission lines from Dayton to Washington C. H., Wilmington and a dozen or more other points, out of commission and resulted in all electrical power being cut off for more than two hours, beginning at about 4:40 P. M.

It was the worst "blackout" here in at least 12 years and as soon as the double trouble developed, The Dayton Power and Light Co. started crews out from Dayton, Xenia, Wilmington and Washington C. H. to make repairs, while other crews stood by at the plant here to make repairs caused by lightning running in on the wires.

The worst of the storm centered near Xenia, where a small tornado tore down five electric light towers and the wires. A bolt of lightning made a direct hit on a tower, melting huge porcelain insulators and destroying the circuit.

Not only was this city, but Wilmington and all smaller points served out of the two cities, powerless for over two hours. The boilers of the plant here were down for inspection and could not be used, so it was just a question of waiting until the high lines could be restored, which was around 6:35 P. M.

As the heavy storm moved into Fayette County there was a tremendous display of electricity. In Xenia and community, older residents said they had never experienced such an electrical storm. Considerable damage was done.

Twice during the storm lightning was said to have struck the 200 foot stack of the Dayton Power and Light Co. plant here, but was carried to the ground by the heavy lightning rod on it.

A bolt also struck a mast arm supporting the street light at North and Rawling streets, melting part of the metal piping, tearing it from the supporting pole and damaging the pole.

This caused lightning to run into the switchboard of the plant here, causing considerable damage and resulting in a pyrotechnic display.

Superintendent F. E. Hill had just left the switchboard and thus escaped injury.

Damage was done to the substation here where lightning had run in.

Numerous bolts of lightning struck within the city limits while the storm raged. A heavy rain-fall accompanied the storm and about .80 of an inch of rain falling during the entire day, with most of it during the one storm.

It was not until midnight that the repair crews had completed their work for the night, and had restored all service. Work of continuing necessary repairs was resumed Wednesday morning.

REGISTRATION DAY AT WHS ON FRIDAY

Registration day for all students living outside of Washington C. H. who plan to attend the high school here for the first time, are to register at the principal's office, reached by the North Street entrance next Friday, from 9-12 and 1-5, it was announced by Principal W. F. Rettig, Friday evening.

Students who have not registered and are regularly enrolled in the high school should also register as soon as possible and not later than July 16, Prin. Rettig said.

While Prin. Rettig could not say how many ninth grade boys and girls from the surrounding rural sections would come to the high school in Washington C. H. for the first time next fall, he pointed out that for several years past the average had been around 40 to 50.

SURPRISE RAID TEST PLANNED FOR NEXT WEEK

Fayette County Is Included In Daylight Tests Announced

Definite announcement has been made by the Ohio State Council of Defense that a surprise daylight air raid test will be made in Fayette County and 19 other central Ohio counties sometime during the coming week.

The warning signals will be the same as previously announced and immediate compliance on the part of the public is expected.

In preparation for the forthcoming test, Chairman Edwin Ducey and his various committees are making plans to carry out the provisions of the test raid here promptly.

When these tests are completed, Stone said, the state's 10 warning districts will have participated in daytime air-raid drills designed to acquaint the public with alerting procedure in the event of surprise enemy bombing attacks.

Districts and counties to take part in next week's tests are: District No. 8—Athens, western half of Belmont, Coshocton, Guernsey, Knox, western half of Meigs, western half of Monroe, Morgan, Muskingum, Noble, Perry and Washington; District No. 10—Fayette, Gallia, Jackson, Lawrence, eastern half of Meigs, Pike, Ross, Scioto and Vinton.

Although the exact date and time of the tests will not be announced, Stone said that defense corps personnel will follow the same instructions in daylight drills as are prescribed for blackouts.

Action to be taken by defense corps and the public at the various test warning signals will be First public warning—(Caution—Planes Approaching): On this signal, consisting of a steady blast of not less than two minutes on air raid horns, sirens, or whistles, civilian defense corps will mobilize. Traffic control lights will operate during this period. Automobiles may move at reduced speed. Pedestrians may proceed with caution.

Second public warning—(Air Raid Signal—Planes Overhead): Consisting of a series of signals or short blasts on air raid horns or whistles or the rise and falling sound of sirens for a period of not less than two minutes. Wilmington Bandoliers Back For Fourth Entertainment At Luncheon Meeting

Always a popular attraction here, the "Wilmington Bandoliers," a group of business men who enjoy providing music for organization programs, provided the entertainment for the Washington C. H. Rotarians and guests at their luncheon at the Country Club Tuesday.

This is the fourth time the "Bandoliers" have been brought here and judging by the enthusiastic applause which their program of popular music elicited they will be welcome again as many times as they can come. These entertainers seem to delight in providing music as much as their hearers enjoy listening to it.

A couple of their members could not make this trip for unavoidable reasons but the others made up in enthusiasm what was missing in numbers. Those who composed the group which played here Tuesday were: Norman Cummins, banjo; Charles Fisher, pianist; Roscoe Brann, banjo; Irvin Swindler, banjo; Herbert Doak, bass viol; Don Cline, tenor banjo.

It was announced that C. A. Jones of the American Education Press will be the speaker at next Tuesday's Rotary luncheon, July 20. His talk will deal with a timely subject, "The Philosophy of Nazism."

Congressman Clarence J. Brown has been booked for an address before the Rotarians on Tuesday, August 3.
